

Student Lesson

We have just discussed the three types of irony: verbal, situational, and dramatic. Life is full of these types of ironic situations. Ironic situations result in a variety of emotions from those astute people who recognize them; people can laugh at the humor in the situation or they can become annoyed or angry, depending on the circumstances. Many times authors use irony to make us think about the ups and downs of life.

Using ideas from what you have read, your knowledge of history or current events/pop culture, or your own personal experience, find examples of irony that occur in the following situations.
